

Archaeology is Rubbish!

Archaeology looks at all the things left behind by people in the past to try to understand what they were like. Archaeologists look for the remains of buildings and the rubbish that has been thrown away or lost to build up a picture of the past.

List or draw all the things that you and your family throw away in a day in the bin.

What would the things you throw away tell an archaeologist in the future about the people who lived in your house, what they ate, and what hobbies they had?

Archaeologists in the future will look at my rubbish and think that ...
